Agent learned from a confidential informant that CHANDLER OTEN, who edits a radical periodical in New York City called "THE MESSENGER", and who has made a number of previous attempts to deliver addresses in this section, but who has been stopped just as often by the Police Department, has been in Pittsburgh throughout the entire past week.

Subject has made several speeches in two or three of the colored churches on various phases of the so-called race problems and, from what the writer has been able to learn, his remarks were all within the law. On this visit subject has not been molested by the Police, which is a good criterion in the matter. He spoke on CAPWAY, the KLAN and the race question in general.

An informant states that he knows no one in Homestead who attended any of these sessions. It is a safe speculation that ninety-nine percent of the local mill personnel do not know who CHANDLER OTEN is, and are less interested in radicalism which is being propagated as Socialism. The local men have too many problems of their own demanding solution, without borrowing additional trouble from the outside.

Whatever radical tendencies may have existed among the colored people here were given a rude jolt by GARVEY and his enterprises, and the victims have yet to recover from their loss.

FACTS DEVELOPED

At Los Angeles, California:-

Propaganda and organization activities of the Socialist Party among the negroes is at present active in this District.

CHANDLER OWEN, Editor of "The Negro Messenger," the most radical negro publication in the country, who is openly supporting the "Left Wing" of the Socialist Party and the I.W.W., has been imported to California, and has been an active speaker during the past week.

OWEN spoke at the Labor Temple Auditorium, Los Angeles, March 5th, under the auspices of the SOCIALIST PARTY. He also spoke at various negro churches in the city and suburbs and at Pasadena and Watts. He spoke at Cosmopolitan Hall, North Spring St., Los Angeles before the ~~GENERAL STUDY~~ SOCIETY, which organization is believed to be the ~~conservative~~ name of the "GENERAL BRANCH OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY." He left Los Angeles Wednesday, March 8th, for Bakersfield, where he is scheduled to speak and from there to San Francisco and Oakland, where he will speak Friday, Saturday and Sunday, March 10th, 11th, 12th 1922. (RE: COMMUNIST (Negro) AND COMMUNISM)

Informant states that J. W. HENDERSON, Local Negro publisher and radical, was to manage the activities of OLEN in Los Angeles, but got cold feet, and the management was taken over by J. L. BASS, - Editor of the "CALIFORNIA DAWN." OLEN was also sponsored by LOUIS PHILIPPE and other anti-Survy leaders in Los Angeles, for the reason that OLEN was also speaking against HIRSH GARVEY. The consequence being that OLEN was sponsored and managed by negroes, who were distinctly not radicals, and who quietly worked to nullify the radical teachings of OLEN, - while using him as an instrument to fight GARVEYISM.

It has been reported that the Socialist Party were endeavoring to form an "Ethiopian Local" and counted on OLEN to make a success of this plan.

Confidential negro informant is investigating the personnel and activities of this Local and same will be reported on later.

There is a strong conservative leadership among the negroes in Los Angeles and it is not believed radical agitators will make much headway among negroes in this District.

R. T. WEAVER of the Wesley Methodist Church (Negro) - in his sermon, Sunday night, Dec. 5th, attacked the speeches and teachings of COMMUNIST OLEN.

Clipings of the speeches of COMMUNIST OLEN and of the sermon of Rev. R. T. WEAVER pertaining to the以上 two copy on this page.

Negro Editor to Talk Here

Chandler Owen, negro orator and editor of New York city, will speak under the auspices of the Socialist party Sunday at 2 o'clock in Labor Temple auditorium, 340 Maple avenue, on "The American of Tomorrow." The public is invited.

Owen comes to Los Angeles highly recommended, the following being a few of the reports which have been made of him and his lectures: "As well read, well educated and competent a negro as there is in United States,"—Providence Journal. "By long odds the most able of all negro publishers"—U. S. Dept. of Justice. "Doing vital work,"—Scott Nearing. "He is a man of very unusual mental endowments, of intellectual training, a thinker, writer and speaker of extraordinary power. Indeed, I know of no man of his years better equipped with an accurate knowledge of facts on so many subjects."—Thomas W. Churchill, former president of New York City board of education.

Owen is a graduate of Columbia university.

Negro Leader Says Bosses ^{done}

By R. W. BOROUGH

NO negro visiting Los Angeles in years, perhaps ever, has caused as much intellectual stir among whites and blacks as Chanler Owen, brilliant editor of "The Messenger".

Arrived here a few days ago he has been kept in a continuous whirl of conferences, committee meetings, dinner engagements with notables, non-notables and impromptu public speeches that would have dried up the good humor and killed the mental resiliency of a less vigorous soul. Owen seems to thrive on it, to exist in the fact that in all this flurry of activity he is able to draw not only his race but humanity at large a little farther along the path of progress.

He speaks Tuesday night at St Paul's Baptist church, Twenty-first and Naomi streets, and no man who enjoys contact with a philosopher, thinker and persuasive orator should fail to hear him discuss "The Truth About Hardin's Negro Policy".

It is a vine in four short steps into the office of the California League and courteously arranged a chair for his interviewee. The slightly curly hair is cut close, disclosing a well-shaped head. The eyes are large and their softness borders on dreaminess. The voice is unusually low, with now and then a lisp due to the blurr of the Old South.

Not "Pathetic"

"There is nothing 'pathetic' about this man as about some of the older types of negro leaders—but to him the negro is not the centrally tragic figure, to him there is nothing God-ordained about 'race prejudice', to him the negro and his white and fellow brothers are together—coming out of the abyss of a capitalistic civilization."

"We interpret the race prejudice which dominates especially the south," he said, "as a part of the activities of the plantation owners, the railroad men, the oil barons, the lumber trust, the object being to keep the white and black workers 'doves' fighting over the bone of race prejudice while they, the employers, run up and down with the profit."

"We know that negro and white people don't like each other because they hate each other, but they hate each other because they are constantly fighting each other."

Surplus Labor

"By fighting I mean that there is a large amount of surplus labor in the south—about one-third of the population of the south is negro, 75% of them waste—and wherever they

"work you will find them in groups. White groups and black groups. The employers appeal to the whites on the ground of the superiority of the white skin. One day when the negro decides he has been working too long hours and for less in pay and is his employer for a shorter work—more wages the employer says to the white worker and says, negroes want more wages, want to buy pianos and automobiles. They think they're as good as we are."

"And the white workers fall into this sort of logic. They don't up until one day they ask for less wages and shorter hours. Then employer goes to the negro worker and says, 'Look at this poor white trash—they think they are son bony'."

"The result of this activity of the employers is no unionization and the backward condition of the workers, both black and white."

South Backward

The south, Owen pointed out, provides only $2.79 per child for the education of the negro and $10.63 for the education of the white, while in New York the amount spent for each is $6.63.

The growing hardness of the commercial north and its organs of opinion toward the negro, Owen said, is the result of the linking up of the commercial interests of the north and south. Race prejudice becomes as handy a weapon in one place as in the other to prevent the union of white and black workers and to force upon them a low wage scale.

The new negro, according to Owen, is not to be "mice"—he is to assert himself in a demand for rights, economic, political and social.

"The meek don't inherit the earth," he explained in a gentle voice between answering telephone calls, "or if they do inherit it they soon lose it. The meek stay on the earth to work it for others, good. The weak are victimized by them is rape, attracted to others who are strong, economically, physically, politically, socially."

Talks on Negro Art

Owen is 32 years old. He was born in Wadesboro, N. C. He was educated partly in the public schools of Washington, D. C., later attending the S. S. 1st normal industrial school at Lawrenceville, Va. He went to Virginia Union University at Richmond, Va., where he got his A. B. degree and later studied law and political science at Columbia university.

He has worked with his hands, while attending school, but it was as a master painter and exterior decorator employing other labor.

Negro art sometime strides, he says. "The new negro is in power and is to be seen in it is on its way. But is not yet."
